Will Be

Our Last

Remnant

Day

Till

After Christmas

It will be the most interesting of the present season. We shall be too busy after this week to give our attention to remnants. And as every foot of shelf and counter and floor space is needed for the proper display of our magnificent stock of Gift Goods, which already surpasses anything heretofore attempted, we are going to clear out all the small and incomplete lots and tarrying fall things to start the new month with fresh, clean and unbroken stocks. To this end we have thoroughly ransacked every department in the house and separated therefrom everything that savors of a remnant. Many an odd bit of silk, or ribbon, or velvet, or lace, &c., may be found which can be made use of for Christmas. Numerous odd pieces of china, bric-a-brac, cut glass, &c. Scores of useful lengths in dress goods—ends of the choicest fabrics—suitable for women's dresses, skirts and waists and children's dresses, at half and nearly half former prices. Wrap, Suit, Linen, Upholstery—in fact, every department in the house presents rare buying opportunities.

With the remnants are several bargain lots of merchandise, some of which were purchased for the occasion; others are goods reduced in prices for one reason or another. A goodly collection of remnants of worthy goods in broad and immediate demand at specially reduced prices—prices that should clear them out quickly and completely.

MISS ROOT A BRIDE

Many Social Celebrities Attend Brilliant Function.

ROOSEVELTS AMONG GUESTS

Home of Secretary of State Transformed Into a Veritable Fairy Bower of Flowers, in Which Charming Daughter Becomes the Wife of Lieut. Grant.

More than 500 representatives of the diplomatic corps, the cabinet, the army and navy, and the capital's social set thronged the mansion of the Secretary of State yesterday afternoon to witness the marriage of Miss Edith Root and Lieut. Ulysses S. Grant, third.

This was the third state wedding during the administration of President Roosevelt, and he and Mrs. Roosevelt were, of course, present to witness the ceremony. The wedding of Miss Helen Hay, the popular daughter of the then Secretary of State, the late John Hay, took place in the Church of the Covenant, and Miss Anna Hiltchcock, daughter of the former Secretary of the Interior, and Commander Sims were married at St. John's.

Yesterday's wedding being a house affair, the invitation list had to be restricted; but as it was, so great was the crush that some of the guests were unable to get any farther than the vestibule. When those who were able to enter found themselves within the series of drawing rooms, they also found that the ceremony was well begun, this bride proving an exception to the general rule of brides, for she was not a minute late. In fact, according to many watches, she was "ahead of the clock."

The guests entered by the second entrance and proceeded to the drawing rooms from behind the grand staircase. Arches separated the immediate wedding party from the rest of the guests.

The officiating clergyman was Rev. Herbert Shipman, of New York, once an associate of Lieut. Grant's at West Point, and the ceremony was performed in a bower of maiden hair ferns and huge white chrysanthemums used in such profusion that nothing but a mass of blossoms, enmeshed in the delicate ferns, met the eye.

The bride was escorted by her father, and was superbly gowned in white satin, elaborately trimmed with lace, some of it old point, a family heirloom. Embroidery in strands of silver and pearls further beautified the gown, over which the long, graceful folds of the tulle veil fell to the end of the train and was fastened to her dark hair by a diamond crescent, the gift of the bridegroom.

She was attended by her cousin, Miss Ruth Wales, of New York, who wore white chiffon cloth elaborately trimmed with pearls and silver passementerie and lace.

Mr. Potter Palmer, Jr., cousin of Lieut. Grant, served as his best man, and the ushers were Lieut. Robert Rolston, Lieut. Marlon Howse, both of the army; Mr. Gustave Schwab, of New York; Mr. Edward McLean, of Washington, and Mr. Edward W. Root and Elthru Root, Jr., brothers of the bride.

Flowers Are Everywhere. The immediate family stood around the wedding party to witness the ceremony, the 500 or more guests being scattered throughout the series of drawing rooms and the large center hall, which were decorated with palms and chrysanthemums, the long stairway of the mansion being twined with vines and banked with foliage.

The most conspicuous of the floral tokens consisted of 10,000 white gardenias, the gift of Capt. and Mrs. Porfirio Diaz, son and daughter-in-law of the President of Mexico. Capt. Diaz and his wife had met Miss Root on her recent visit to Mexico with her parents, when Capt. Diaz was assigned to duty as the personal aid of the American Secretary of State. This magnificent gift reached Washington last night in a special car in charge of a messenger sent by Capt. Diaz.

An orchestra from the Engineer's Band of the Washington Barracks played throughout the afternoon, and a collation was served after the ceremony in the large dining room.

Roosevelts Occupy Corner. On account of Secretary Root's close affiliation with the members of the diplomatic corps, all the ambassadors, ministers, and charges d'affaires were invited by the ladies of their families; also all the secretaries' colleagues in the cabinet circle, and the officers of the army and navy, besides the host of friends of the young couple.

The President and Mrs. Roosevelt arrived early and occupied seats in a corner set apart for them. Mrs. Roosevelt looked very well in a gown of some soft gauzy material in white, a contrasting note of coloring being given by the mirabeau stone she wore around her shoulders. Representative and Mrs. Nicholas Longworth also were present. Some of the New Yorkers present were former Ambassador Porter, Mr. Joseph Choate, Mr. and Mrs. C. B. Alexander, Col. and Mrs. McCook and their daughters, the Misses McCook, Prof. and Mrs. Chandler, Mr. and Mrs. Charles Follen, Rear Admiral Coghlan and Mrs. Coghlan, Mrs. Daniel Butterfield, Mrs. Edson Bradley, and Mrs. Herbert Shipman.

Mr. Potter Palmer, of Chicago, and her son, Potter Palmer, Jr., were present, as was the other aunt of Lieut. Grant, Mrs. Nellie Grant Sartoris; also Mrs. Galen Wales, of New York, grandmother of the bride and the father and mother of the bridegroom, Gen. and Mrs. Frederick Dent Grant.

Other guests included Vice President and Mrs. Fairbanks, their daughter, Mrs. Timons, and their son, Robert Fairbanks; the Secretary of the Treasury and Mrs. McCook, and the latter's sister, Mrs. Cortelyou, and the latter's sister, Mrs. Hinds; the Secretary of the Interior and Mrs. Garfield, Attorney General Bonaparte, the Postmaster General and Mrs. May, the Misses Mayer, the Secretary of the Navy and Mrs. Metcalf, the Secretary of Commerce and Labor, and Mrs. Straus, Secretary of Agriculture, and Baroness von Sternburg, the French Ambassador and Senora Nabuco, the Brazilian Ambassador and Senora Nabuco, and Senora Nabuco, the Austrian Ambassador and Baroness Hengelmüller, Baron Rosen, the Russian Ambassador, the Japanese Ambassador and Viscountess Aoki; the Mexican Ambassador and Senora Creel, the British Ambassador and Mr. Bryce, chief Justice Fuller, of the United States Supreme Court, and his daughter, Mrs. Francis; the Associate Justices of the Supreme Court and their wives, Senator and Mrs. Murray Crane, Senator John Kean and his mother, and the Misses Keary, Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Nelson Page, Mr. and Mrs. John R. McLean, Mr. and Mrs. Beckman Withroth, Mrs. Philip Sheridan, Senator and Mrs. P. C. Knox, Senator and Mrs. S. B. Elkins, Mrs. Hunt Slater, Mrs. L. Z. Leiter, and Miss Schuyler, of New York.

After the Ceremony. After the wedding reception the bride cut the wedding cake, while the President and Mrs. Roosevelt stood beside her. The honeymoon of Lieut. and Mrs. Grant will be spent partly at Friendship, the country home of John R. McLean, near Washington, where Representative and Mrs. Longworth went after their marriage at the White House in February, 1905. A little later Lieut. and Mrs. Grant will go to the country place of the Root family, in Clinton, N. Y. Lieut. Grant is stationed in Boston, and the couple will live at Brookline, Mass., where a beautiful home, the gift of the bride's parents, is ready for them. It is a pretty place—cottages in style in architecture, and is at 42 Brighton road.

It was in Boston that Lieut. Grant made his maiden speech at Dorchester—one of the numerous suburbs—November 12. He talked to the Men's Club of the Third Unitarian Religious Society, Dorchester, on "The Corps of Engineers of the United States Army."

Nobody would have known it was a first public effort. He made a distinctly good impression, and showed that he had an excellent grasp of his subject. Miss Edith Root, who has been a member of the officers' circle here since 1888, has a host of friends, who admire her for her modesty, staidness, and sweet and graceful manner. As the daughter of the Secretary of War, a position her father held until his resignation, which was soon followed by his appointment as Secretary of State, the bride has been a member of the cabinet circle for years, and has held her high place always with grace and dignity.

She has kept entirely out of the limelight, and has conducted herself with the most modest demeanor of any other lady of less social position. She is dark, with serious eyes, petite in figure, and rather picturesque in style. She cares more for the earnest side of life than society. She and her father are great chums, and she takes an active interest in all the political questions that concern him. She reads all his speeches and often, indeed, makes suggestions to her father concerning their subject matter.

She has inherited from her mother a penchant for languages, and is a good linguist, one of her latest accomplishments being the acquisition of Spanish and Portuguese, which she and her mother learned before taking the trip to South America, in order to have a more sympathetic interest in the country and people they were expecting to meet. Miss Root was for a time the most intimate friend of Miss Alice Roosevelt, now Mrs. Longworth.

Lieut. Grant's Career. Lieut. Grant was born in New York, in 1861, and lived there until his father was appointed Minister to Vienna, where he went abroad with the family. He was graduated from West Point in 1882, and then followed three years of active service in the Philippines, with the appointment of aid at the White House to follow.

Lieut. Grant's mother was Miss Ida Honore, a sister of Mrs. Potter Palmer, and his sister is the Princess Cantuzane of Russia. A pretty little story in the life of Lieut. Grant is in connection with the way in which he received his appointment to West Point. His famous grandfather, Gen. Ulysses S. Grant, for whom he was named, was desirous, of course, that his grandson should follow in his steps and make a name for himself as a soldier.

So as early as 1883, when the general was at the point of death, he wrote a letter addressed to the President of the United States requesting him to appoint his grandson. The boy was then but eleven years old, but the letter was carefully guarded among the family papers for two years, when it again saw the light, this time to receive the indorsement of Gen. Sherman.

Eleven years later, President McKinley received this letter, coming as it did as a voice from the grave, which read as follows: "To the President of the United States: May I ask you to favor the appointment of Ulysses S. Grant, the son of my son, Frederick Grant, as a cadet at West Point, upon his application? In doing so, you will gratify the wishes of

"U. S. GRANT."

Of course, the young man received his appointment. President Roosevelt, appointed Lieut. Grant a social aid at the White House, and it is claimed by Mrs. Roosevelt, who is very fond of the young man and his bride, that the romance which was consummated in their wedding was begun in the White House, where the young people were thrown together by State levies, as well as other less formal functions.

Lieut. Grant has lived up to the record his grandfather cut out for him, so far as opportunity has permitted the young man, and the nation rejoiced with the hero's grandson in his happiness yesterday.

Many Handsome Presents. Among the presents received by the young couple was that of the President and Mrs. Roosevelt, a painting of the south portico of the White House—a gift which must have a peculiar significance to them. Others were a diamond tiara and a handsome tea set, besides the silver breakfast service which, the Lieut. and Mrs. Ulysses S. Grant, a brooch of diamonds from the French Ambassador and Mme. Jusserand, a large silver bowl from the Mexican Ambassador and Mme. Creel, a silver service for the bridegroom's grandfather, Mr. Honore, and a silver dessert set from his uncle, the Messrs. Honore.

The Japanese Ambassador and Viscountess Aoki sent a picture, and Mr. Andrew Carnegie a silver fish dish and set of plates. Mrs. Russell Sage and Miss Helen Gould both sent jewels, and Gen. Horace Porter sent a large French clock. Senator and Mrs. Elkins' gift was a large Kermanshah rug. Ambassador and Mrs. Whitelaw Reid sent a silver tete-a-tete set, and a silver service came from Mr. and Mrs. Alfred Vanderbilt.

A beautiful fan was sent by Mrs. Thomas P. Ryan, a dressing bag by Mrs. Robert Hitt, a diamond comb from Mrs. Frederick W. Vanderbilt. From the Princess Cantuzane came a jewel corsage bouquet and a vanity box; from Gen. Honore, Dodge, a silver pitcher, and many more valuable and beautiful articles.

The daria of diamonds given the bride by General and Mrs. Grant was once the property of Mrs. U. S. Grant, and is a beautiful design. A band of links, encircling a chain goes half way round the head, and all are studded with perfect gems.

The silver service, the gift of the Messrs. Honore, consists of four creamers, two vases, a huge bowl of unique design, and a set of finger bowls.

A carved oak chest filled with fine linen, table and bed linen, was one of the handsomest presents. There were books without number, several necklaces of jade, beside others of precious stones. There were sixteen silver dinner plates, all different, but of a similar size.

Beautiful Display of Gowns. Among the handsome toilettes was that of Baroness Hengelmüller, who wore a smart gown of purple cloth elaborately trimmed and embroidered, with which she wore a hat to correspond.

Baroness von Sternburg wore a handsome gown of blue soft silk, profusely embroidered.

The Viscountess Aoki, wife of the Japanese Ambassador, was in gray chiffon and cloth trimmed with white.

Mrs. Potter Palmer wore a stunning gown of black lace, embroidered heavily with silver, and a white picture hat and magnificent jewels.

Mrs. Root looked charming in a gown of soft gray silk and lace.

Mrs. Frederick Grant was smartly gowned in a gown of electric blue, of blue and black with a large black picture hat.

Mrs. Garfield was in ivory white cloth embroidered in Oriental colors, with which she wore a large white hat.

Mrs. Parlo, wife of the Peruvian Minister, was in gray chiffon cloth and a gray hat trimmed with a huge white plume.

Mme. Portela, wife of the Argentine Minister, wore gray chiffon velvet with trimmings of lace.

Mme. Habuco, wife of the Brazilian Ambassador, appeared in a gown of black velvet with accessories of white lace and white plumes, in a black hat.

Mrs. Duval, wife of Gen. Duval, wore pink messaline of a delicate shade with which she wore a black hat with a pink feather.

Miss Louise Forsaker wore the gown she wore as bridesmaid to Miss Colton, now Mrs. Davis, and old rose chiffon satin made jumper dress, with a wide black and the V neck edged with cream lace.

Mme. Cories was in a seafoam chiffon gown trimmed with lace.

Mme. Pastor, wife of the Spanish Charge, was in a gown of red velvet trimmed with rare antique Spanish lace. Her hat was of ivory tulle, with feathers shading from cream to gold.

Mme. Jusserand, wife of the French Ambassador, wore black satin with trimmings of lace and white.

Mme. Creel in Purple Velvet. Mme. Creel, wife of the Mexican Ambassador, was in purple velvet, with hat trimmed with plumes.

Mrs. Edson Bradley, of New York, was handsomely gowned in white, a long coat of Irish lace enveloping her gown, with which she wore a white hat trimmed with plumes. Her daughter, Mrs. Herbert Shipman, was in a smart suit of light brown embroidered and trimmed with lace.

Miss Marion Oliver, daughter of the Assistant Secretary of War, looked remarkably well in a gown of red cloth embroidered with eyelet embroidery, with which she wore a picture hat of black.

Mrs. Thomson Nelson was smartly gowned in black and white chiffon and lace, with which she wore some beautiful pearls.

Mrs. McCauley, wife of Maj. McCauley, was chic in an electric blue Parisian gown, and a hat of black and white chiffon and lace.

Mrs. James Pinchot wore a black gown embroidered and a black hat trimmed with a cluster of white feathers.

Mrs. Gillespie, wife of Gen. Gillespie, wore a beautiful gown of mauve cloth with hat trimmed with plumes.

Mrs. Sharpe, wife of Gen. Sharpe, was in a white silk dotted with various colors and trimmed with lace.

Mrs. Nicholas Fish was smartly attired in black chiffon and satin combined with lace.

Mme. Godoy wore black velvet with a hat trimmed with white plumes.

Mrs. Thomas Nelson Page was in old blue chiffon with sleeves of lace and a long plume on her hat.

Mrs. Letter was in purple velvet with a large purple hat with a bird of paradise on one side.

Mrs. Hunt Slater wore black velvet and a hat of Russian sable.

French Naval Attache Entertains at Pleasing Dinner.

PRESIDENT GOES TO VIRGINIA

Roosevelt Family to Spend Thanksgiving at Montpelier, the Home of Madison-Miss Gertrude Miller Becomes Bride of Mr. Ernest F. Riley. Society Receives Miss Fitch.

Lieut. Commander de Blampre, naval attache of the French Embassy, and Mme. de Blampre, entertained at dinner last evening, covers being laid for twelve. The guests included Lieut. Col. B. R. James, military attache of the British Embassy, and the Hon. Mrs. James, Mr. G. Young, second secretary of the British Embassy, and Mrs. Young, and their guest, Mrs. Russell; Mme. Hebbinghaus, wife of the naval attache of the German Embassy; Capt. Fournier, military attache of the French Embassy; Prince Koudacheff, of the Russian Embassy, and Mr. and Mrs. Hugh Legare.

The President and Mrs. Roosevelt, Miss Edith Roosevelt, and Quentin will leave Washington to-day to visit the home of former President James Madison, in Montpelier, Va.

The wedding of Miss Jessie Gertrude Miller, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. E. W. Miller, to Mr. Ernest F. Riley, was solemnized yesterday at noon at the family residence, 229 A street southeast. Only relatives were present at the ceremony, which was performed by Rev. William Levering De Vries, rector of St. Mark's Church. An informal breakfast followed. The color scheme of green and white in decorations was carried out in an artistic arrangement of palms and white carnations. The wedding party stood beneath a canopy of similar, backed with palms and autumn leaves.

The bride, who was escorted and given in marriage by her father, wore a stylish traveling suit of blue broadcloth, with a hat of the same shade of velvet, trimmed with ostrich plumes. The wedding bouquet was a cluster of white chrysanthemums, and an interesting accessory to the bride's costume was a handkerchief of exquisite lace, which was carried by her grandmother, Mrs. C. S. Miller, who was one of those present at the wedding yesterday, at her own wedding fifty-four years ago.

Miss Mabel Meacham was maid of honor, and the bride's only attendant. She wore a street suit of blue cloth, with a becoming hat to correspond, and carried a cluster of pink chrysanthemums. Mr. George D. Riley was his brother's best man. Mr. and Mrs. Riley left Washington in the afternoon for a wedding trip, and upon their return to the city will take up their residence at the home of the bride's parents, in A street.

Rear Admiral William Sheffield Cowles left Washington Tuesday evening to spend the Thanksgiving holidays with Mrs. Cowles at their place at Farmington, Conn. He will return to the city the first of next week.

The Speaker of the House, Joseph G. Cannon, and the Secretary of Agriculture, James Wilson, will be the guests for dinner this evening of Representative James R. Mann and Mrs. Mann at their home in Rhode Island avenue.

Miss Margaret Symons, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Thomas W. Symons, one of the most charming of last season's debutantes, entertained at luncheon yesterday complimentary to the debutantes of this winter. Her guests were Miss Sadie Murray, Miss Sallie Gorlington, Miss Mary Schuyler, Miss Yulee Noble, Miss Henrietta Fitch, Miss Eleanor Ridgely, Miss Constance Hoyt, Miss Langfitt, Miss Leupp, and Miss Hitchcock.

Lieut. Col. Robert Evans and Mrs. Evans are the guests of Mrs. Evans' mother, Mrs. Hornsby, at her home in I street, where they will spend the winter. Col. Evans has recently come to Washington, having been ordered here on the general staff.

Miss Henrietta Fitch, daughter of the Chief of Engineers, U. S. N., and Mrs. Fitch, was formally presented to society at a tea yesterday afternoon at the family residence. The house was attractively decorated with flowers, a pretty tribute to the debutante from her large circle of friends. On the table, in the dining-room, pink flowers and dainty pink table appointments were used. Mrs. McClurg, Mrs. Charles Spalding, Mrs. O. T. Tittman, and Mrs. Harris, wife of Paymaster General H. T. B. Harris, U. S. N., assisted in the dining-room, and the debutantes of the winter, comprising Miss Eleanor Ridgely, Miss Vera Downing, Miss Mary Scott, Miss Grace Jarvis, Miss Yulee Noble, Miss Katherine Leech, Miss Finley, Miss Hoyt, with whom were Miss Esther Cenny, Miss Marion Leutze, and Miss Cary Crawford, also assisted.

Mrs. Fitch wore a handsome gown of black velvet, white lace being introduced in trimming, and the debutante wore a soft and becoming frock of white silk, trimmed with flet lace, and cut in modified empire style. Miss Emile Fitch, elder sister of the bud, wore red chiffon cloth, and Miss Alexander Fitch, another sister, wore an afternoon gown of white broadcloth and lace.

Representative Nicholas Longworth and Mrs. Longworth arrived in Washington Tuesday evening, to attend the Root-Grant wedding, and are at the White House, where they are in readiness for them.

Mrs. Ida Belle Hutchins has issued cards announcing the marriage of her daughter, Grace, to Mr. Frederic Bailey Keefe. The ceremony was performed yesterday by Rev. Frank Sewall. Mr. and Mrs. Keefe left Washington for a wedding trip, and will be at home on December 15 at 565 Second street northwest.

CLASS HOLDS SESSION.

Officers Elected Following Prolonged Balloting.

The first year class of the Georgetown Law School held a meeting last evening for the purpose of electing class officers. After a long period of balloting, the following were elected: President, Mr. John P. Sullivan, of Thompsonville, Conn.; vice president, Mr. Morton H. Burdick, of Adams, Mass.; secretary, Mr. John L. Curran, of Providence, R. I.; treasurer, Mr. George R. Frye, of Parsons, Kans.; sergeant-at-arms, Mr. Desmond J. O'Neil, of Glendive, Mont.

The class is the largest that ever entered Georgetown Law school, being composed of 197 members. They have already shown promise of progress by holding a very successful smoker, and it is their intent to promote good-fellowship by having similar social affairs.

STATE DEPARTMENT MAY MOVE

Desires New Building to Accord It Better Facilities.

A special effort will be made at the coming session of Congress to procure an appropriation for a new building for the State Department. The present quarters occupied by the department in the State, War, and Navy Building, are so congested as to seriously interfere with the proper transaction of business.

It is Secretary Root's purpose to ask the Committee on Public Buildings and Grounds of the House and Senate to make an investigation of conditions in the State Department with respect to its accommodations, in order to impress upon Congress the necessity for a new structure. The space now occupied by the department is much desired by the Navy Department, which adjoins it.

HOW MAIL MAY REACH FLEET.

Atlantic Squadron Will Be Long Delayed Word from Home.

Rear Admiral Evans, commander-in-chief of the Atlantic fleet, has issued formal orders giving the hierarchy of the fleet on its voyage to the Pacific, as well as directions for forwarding mail to officers and members of the crews.

From December 16 to February 5 mail for the fleet is to be sent in care of the postmaster at New York, and after that date in care of the postmaster at San Francisco. From the time the vessels leave Rio until they reach Callao, on the west coast of South America, it will be impossible to get mail to them from the United States.
